The Tom Price community held its annual King of the Mountain fun run on the weekend.

A total of 100 keen participants traversed Mount Nameless/Jundunmunha.

The race was about 2.5km with a vertical climb of 300 metres.

Mike Fisher helped organise the event and said it was not about competitiveness, but more about participation, family fun and healthy lifestyle options.

The men's open winner was Ben Bickley, women's open winner Megumi McAloon, under-15 boys winner Lachlan Willmot, under-15 girls winner Sarah Johnson and team-of-three winners Brooke Coutts and Beth and Micah Rogers.

Open winners received $200 and the juniors $50.

The event raised $500 for the St John volunteer ambulance service.

Commemorative t-shirts were designed by local youth through the Shire of Ashburton's school holiday program.

T-shirts were soaked in soda ash, dyed, rinsed, dried and screened and each child took home one of their own.

The Shire of Ashburton thanked Tom Price High School arts teacher Robyn Wade who helped with the design process.

After the race the organising team held a breakfast at the St John sub-centre.

They enjoyed a look around the facility and showed their support for the town volunteers.
