

Tented

We wanted to be transparent in our design and let the materials tell their own story.

The entire construction is made of scrap wood from VELUX window production and is held together using no screws but only wood dowels and bio glue.

The seating element is made from used and worn out tents.

The bench shows where the used materials came from by not adding or changing the appearance of their original forms too much.

