New degree programmes at Singapore Institute of Technology

By Sharon See

The Singapore Institute of Technology (SIT) unveiled another two new degree programmes yesterday, bringing the total number of new degree programmes for its August intake to seven.

These include Trinity College Dublin's occupational therapy and physiotherapy degrees, which will be offered at Nanyang Polytechnic, Glasgow School of Art's communication design and interior design courses at Temasek Polytechnic, Wheelock College's early childhood education programme at Ngee Ann Polytechnic, and University of Glasgow's aeronautical engineering and aerospace systems degrees at Singapore Polytechnic. The courses were chosen after consultation with the Government on Singapore's manpower needs.

This brings the number of programmes offered to 24. The institute's intake has also risen from 950 to 1,300, as it hopes to take in about 2,000 students by 2015.
