

Officers get sponsorships for new degree programme

A BATCH of 32 Home Team officers were awarded sponsorships for a new degree programme in criminology and security at a Ministry of Home Affairs ceremony yesterday.

The full-time three-year degree course is a partnership between the Singapore Institute of Technology and the University of Liverpool.

Second Minister for Home Affairs and Trade and Industry S. Iswaran said the programme would raise the level of professionalism of the safety and security industry and help meet the demand for trained personnel. The first intake of about 40 students will begin their studies next month.
