Book takes kids on MRT learning journey

Mindy's first MRT adventure comes true

Mindy, a 5-year-old girl, has always dreamed of riding the MRT. When the opportunity presented itself, she jumped at the chance to join a group of children on a MRT ride as part of a study. The children were selected for their love of trains and their ability to follow instructions. They were led through a series of activities that helped them understand the basics of the MRT system.

The children were given a special MRT map to follow and were encouraged to ask questions about the trains and stations. They also learned about the different types of trains and the roles of the different staff members. The children were given a special MRT badge to wear as a symbol of their achievement.

Mindy's parents were thrilled to see her so excited about the MRT and were proud to see her learning about a mode of transportation that is so important in Singapore.
